Treasury Department.
Office of Comptroller of the Treasury,
WASHINGTON, MARCH 28TH, 1866.

WHEREAS, by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that "THE MINERS' NATIONAL BANK OF SALT LAKE," in the City of Great Salt Lake, in the County of Great Salt Lake and Territory of Utah, has been duly organized under and according to the requirements of the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to provide a National Currency, secured by a pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof," approved June 3d, 1864, and has complied with all the provisions of said Act required to be complied with before commencing the business of Banking under said Act.

Now therefore I, Freeman Clarke, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that "THE MINERS' NATIONAL BANK OF SALT LAKE," in the City of Great Salt Lake, in the County of Great Salt Lake, and Territory of Utah, is authorized to commence the business of Banking, under the Act aforesaid.

In testimony whereof witness my hand and seal of office, this Twenty eighth day of March, 1866.

[SEAL.] FREEMAN CLARKE,

The Veto Power.

Whenever any executive officer having the veto power vested in him chooses in his judgment to exercise it for the public benefit, the people are at once aroused and demand the reasons inducing such action. Under our form of Government the veto power is vested in the President and Governors of States and Territories. It is a constitutional right and when used by any officer, the presumption is that he does so from the best of motives—a regard for the public good. When the President vetoed the Freedmen's Bureau Bill, Congress acquiesced in the veto, being unable to pass the bill over his objections, and so far as we can learn the country has also acquiesced in the fate of the proposed measure. No person disputed the right of the President to veto that bill, and we do not understand why such a hue and cry should be raised against him because of that veto.

The President vetoed the Civil Rights Bill, and there being a sufficient number of votes in Congress to pass the bill over the veto; the measure became a law and no constitutional right was violated in the action of the President and Congress. Each in its sphere acted wholly within the limits of the Constitution.

Governors of States frequently veto bills passed by their Legislatures—sometimes the veto holds good and again it is destroyed by reason of a following two thirds vote of the law making power.

The passage of the Civil Rights Bill over the President's veto, is the second instance of the kind within the history of the Government. An unimportant measure, vetoed by Tyler, was passed over his objections by a two-thirds vote of both Houses of Congress. Washington, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Tyler, Polk and Buchanan have exercised the veto power. Jackson vetoed nine bills, which had passed Congress, and not one of them ever passed over his objection. Washington exercised the veto power on two occasions. Madison exercised it six times. Tyler four times, Polk three times, and Monroe and Buchanan exercised it once during their respective terms of office.

If the people object to the exercise of the veto power, let them take it away by amending the Constitution. Wholesale abuse should not be heaped upon President or Governor, when either in the exercise of an unquestioned constitutional right, and supposed to be acting for the best interest of the public, as understood by him, interposed the veto power and compels an exercise of the highest law making power in the Nation or State to overcome the veto and make the measure a law.

Scarcity of Money in Utah.

You have tight money markets sometimes in the East. I have read of how semi-savage nations "barter." I saw it cited, as a curious fact in the newspapers that in Georgia eggs are used as "small change;" but in Utah I see around me a people, a prosperous people, doing the business of life almost without money at all. In Salt Lake City itself, right in the line of travel, there is some money; but in the country settlements which radiate thence into every valley and by every water course for 100 miles it is literally true that they have no circulating medium. Wheat is the usual legal tender of the country. Horses, harness, vehicles, cattle and hay are cash; eggs, butter, pistols, knives, stockings and whiskey are change; pumpkins, potatoes, sorghum, molasses and calves are "shinplasters," which are taken at a discount, and with which the saints delight to pay their debts (if it is ever a delight to pay debts.) Business in this community, with the currency, is a very curious and amusing pastime. A peddler, for instance, could take out his goods in a carpet-bag, but would need a "bull' train to freight back his money. I knew a man who refused an offer to work in the country at fifty dollars a month, because he would need a "forty hundred wagon and four yoke of oxen" to haul his week's wages to the whiskey shop, theatre, &c., on Saturday evening. That was an inconvenience, truly. And yet the farmers in the country towns suffer from an exactly opposite grievance. They cannot keep their big sons from sneaking into the granary at night and taking off a half bushel or so of wheat, carrying it to the dram shop and having a "high." When a man once lays out his money in any kind of property, it is next to impossible to reconvert it into money. There is many a man here, who, when he first came into the valley, had no intention of remaining more than a short time, but soon got so involved that he could never get away without making heavy pecuniary sacrifices. Property is a Proteus, which you must continue to grip firmly, notwithstanding his slippery changes, until you have him in his true shape—now you have him as a fine horse and saddle; presto, he is only sixty gallons of sorghum molasses; now he changes into two cows and a calf, and before you have time to think, he is transformed into 15 cords of wood up in the mountain cañon; next he becomes a yoke of oxen, then a "shutler" wagon; ha! is he about to slip from you at last in the form of bad debts? —Salt Lake Correspondence to the N. Y. Sun.

Mr. O J. Goldrick, of the Salt Lake Daily Vedette, made us a call yesterday, on his tour through Idaho and perhaps to the Columbia river. His business is to report to the Vedette what he sees of Idaho, and increase the circulation of his paper, which is truly deserving of patronage. The Vedette is contributing much to the downfall of Brigham and his barbarisms, and for the personal labor and danger incurred in that work should be well patronized. It is unnecessary to tell our readers for they know already that it is always full of the latest news and is ably conducted. Long live Goldrick and the Vedette.—Idaho Statesman.

[From the Montana Post.]

Misplaced Sympathy.

The following article, from the Portland Oregonian, will be read with interest. It is a conclusive proof that the men hung at Snake River were well worthy of their fate. We think it only right to say, however, that the Vigilance Committee had nothing to do with the execution, which was the work of private citizens, who felt outraged at the conduct of the men:

"On the 10th day of March last, a man by the name of C. W. Jenks was arrested in this city for having passed sixteen legal tender notes of the denomination of $5 each, upon Messrs. Hasker Bros., which were pronounced counterfeit.—Jenks appeared honest, and he succeeded so far in making his case out a mistake, showing that he was not aware of the bills being counterfeit, producing evidence of his former standing in the State of Illinois, and confounding the people, that when his examination came off before Justice McCoy, a motion to dismiss the complaint by the counsel for the prosecution was entertained, and he was set at liberty. The name of Jenks was suppressed from the police report in this paper, at the request of numerous respectable citizens, for the same reasons and he thus succeeded, by artful dodges, in making himself appear the type of moral rectitude. His efforts did not fully blind the eyes of all officers, however, some of whom, since the transaction here, held the opinion that Jenks was a rascal, and that opinion has been fully corroborated by subsequent events. It appears that at the time of Jenks' arrest here, he had an assistant here, who went by the name of Thompson, whose real name was Parks, who escaped arrest. The two had come together on the steamer of the few days previous from the East, and were heavy operators in the articles of bogus gold-dust and counterfeit greenbacks. Thompson made an excuse for the heft of his baggage when he left Umatilla, that he was a book agent, and his trunks were filled with books. The gravity was occasioned by the presence of the 'queer' (bogus money.) These 'gentlemen' proceeded on their journey to Idaho, and there entered in full sway upon the commission of their operations. By secret working and shrewd management, they soon amassed a fortune and were about to leave for the Atlantic States, when, as we are informed by Mr. S. S. Moore, who has just returned from Idaho, they were captured and hung in the vicinity of Salmon Falls, by a detachment of the Vigilance Committee, in July last.—Mr. Moore was well acquainted with both Jenks and Parks, and having accompanied them to this city by steamship, and from this city to Idaho, being here at the time of Jenks' arrest in March last, is familiar with their course. The real cause of the parties being followed by the Vigilance Committee was occasioned by their passing counterfeit legal tender notes at Boise City. A brother of Parks was also taken, being in company with them at the time of their arrest, but he was acquitted, and is now at Idaho City. It is now shown that they left for the States with some $20,000, a large portion of which was owing to parties in Idaho City, but it does not appear that the creditors ever got their money. The events go to show a case of misplaced confidence on the part of our citizens, and it suggests whether it is not best, in all cases, to let every tub rest on its own bottom. Had not the private prosecutor been persuaded to move for dismissal of the complaint, and had the defendant Jenks been allowed to stand his trial, he might now have been a living man, but possibly serving the State of Oregon in a penal jacket, which is more preferable than dying in one's boots. Let laws take their course in civilized communities, and there will be less necessity or requirement for Vigilance Committees in the mountains, where it is a hard matter to convict scoundrels the deeper dyed they get."

California Items.—From the Alta.—The frost, on last Saturday night, did great damage to the vineyards in San José ....The grain crops of Sutter county, will not turn out as successfully as was at first hoped. Northern Pacific Railroad Scheme Killed.

Our telegraphic despatches from Washington announce that the Northern Pacific Railroad bill was "killed," in the House of Representatives, "after a protracted and stormy debate," on the 27th ult., by a vote of 76 to 56.

There is but little doubt that the Northern Pacific Railroad has great merits intrinsically. The line, although not definitely settled, would, according to the Montana Post, if carried forward to completion, commence at some point on the Missouri river, extending westwardly through Montana, Idaho and Oregon. The bill which has been defeated does not interfere with the original grant of land to aid the construction of a Northern Pacific Railroad, to open a communication between the Upper Mississippi Valley, Oregon, and Washington Territory, but it was an attempt to obtain, in addition, a guarantee from the Government that the road should pay six per cent. income on a certain amount of stock to be issued, for 30 years to come. The bill was a grand "log-rolling" scheme, which would have involved the Government to a very large amount; besides, its passage would have established a precedent by which a lobby would be drawn about Congress more exacting than that which has just been broken up by the defeat of the bill. A railroad extending across the continent, located three or four hundred miles north of the one which is now being constructed, would open communication with a territory of immense value.—Such a road must be constructed at no distant day, but it is believed that a liberal grant of land will be sufficient.—Government cannot consistently contribute directly large sums of money to aid local railroads. It has given in the case of the Pacific an extraordinary bonus; but this was because one overland road was deemed a necessity for the protection of this coast. In the event of a war with a strong naval power, it is understood that the United States would have been placed in an unfavorable position, without the means of a direct communication across the continent.—But one road having been provided for at an extraordinary expense to the Government, another was not so essential.—In the present instance the lobby was working for advantages. The names of individuals of standing, it is said, were inserted in the bill without even their own knowledge, to give it popularity and success. The public care nothing about the amount of money individuals may realize in originating railroads, but they are opposed to having charters granted to schemers who do nothing but lobby with a view to profits, and actually hinder important improvements. As a case to point in respect to the Western Pacific, for instance, it is said that several persons who have had nothing whatever to do with the building of the road, have realized large fortunes. They fastened upon the franchise parasitically, and must be bought off before the work could proceed satisfactorily.

There is no doubt, but the policy of the Government in granting lands liberally to railroads has been of immense advantage to the country. Indeed, but for this kind of private enterprise, several of the Western States would scarcely have been settled. Land, which for the time being was of little use, was brought into market and sattled upon.—The territory stretching westwardly from the frontiers of Missouri, Iowa, etc., have but few navigable streams. It must be reached by railroads. With these constructed at reasonable distances, the whole interior will be dotted over with settlements. Otherwise they must be kept back for years.

From California.

[From the Enterprise.]

San Francisco, May 3.

A new daily morning newspaper is soon to be started here, called The Times, published by a joint stock company.—The certificate of incorporation was filed to-day. Capital stock, $150,000. Trustees, C. T. Meader, James Daws, T. L. Carker, Henry Carlton, jr., J. Greenbaum, Lucius A. Booth, John Barton, William B. Bourne, Caleb S. Hobbs, J. H. Haste, James B. Stetson and W. H. Barton, all Front street merchants and capitalists. It will espouse the side of Congress in opposition to the President's policy, but will not be extremely radical. Its advent causes quite a sensation in newspaper circles. Its editors have not yet been named.

Edwin Forest arrived on the Constitution to-day, accompanied by Mr. McCulloch and Miss Lillie, who will support him.

Horse cars will be run on the Market Street Railroad after the first of July next, when the company's privilege to run steam cars terminates.

Advices from Australia, per ship Coyer, report destructive floods in some portions of the colony.

Advices from the Barbacoas mines continue discouraging. Two vessels arrived at Panama with passengers only a few of whom had money enough to get to San Francisco. The authorities in Barbacoas were sending miners into the interior, to prevent an accumulation of paupers.

A naval court was investigating the circumstances of the explosion on the steamer European, at Aspinwall.

The line of steamers between Panama and Australia will commence running in connection with the Southampton steamers June 2d Irwins.—Our talented friends, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin left last week for Helena, where they propose spending a few months, and opening a theatre. Those brilliant artists afforded to the citizens of Virginia rich entertainment during the entire winter. Their performances are of a very superior order, and Mrs. Maria Irwin is unquestionable a "star" of the first magnitude. She is ever perfect in her parts, and never fails. Success belongs to all she undertakes. To our friends in Helena, we can say, that they have a rich fund of amusement and intellectual enjoyment before them, as such performers as Mr. and Mrs. Irwin are rarely met with so far out in the west as Montana.

During the stay of these excellent performers in our city, they made many friends, who regretted their departure—many to whom they had become endeared by their excellent social qualities and pleasant demeanor in the social circle.

Before we conclude this article, it is proper not to overlook Harry Rainsforth, the youthful star—we doubt whether he has his equal in America in one of his years. He is a promising actor and we predict for him high eminence in his profession.—Democrat.

Mr. J. W. Gibson,

SIR:—Your sample of ore, subject to careful assay, contains to the ton of 2000 lbs. 277.02 oz. of silver, value $385.15; gold oz. 1.81, value $37.51; total value $395.66. Respectfully yours

BOHM & MOLITOR, Assayers.

THE Shawano (Wis.) county Journal says there is living at Keshona, in that county, a Menominee squaw by the name of Wha-no-no-me-c-tet, who was for a number of years the "Indian wife," as they are called, of Jeff Davis. She is about fifty-five years of age, and in her youthful days was reported to be good-looking. She commenced to live with Jeff. in the year 1820, while he was stationed at Fort Winnebago.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Jos. Magee, the special correspondent of the San Francisco Alta, started for Montana yesterday. He has been very successful in obtaining new subscribers for his paper and also in making personal friends for himself in this city. The Alta is an able, enterprising journal, and Mr. Magee is a gentleman who has traveled extensively, and is well known among the newspaper men of the Pacific—in fact we may say he possesses all the elements of a successful Bohemian.

NEVADA STATE ITEMS.—The Virginia Union of the 28th ult., has this performance, which is not set down in the bills: "Last evening, at Music Hall, during one of the interludes, one of the fair but frail females of this city got circus on the brain, and attempted to turn a double somersault out of one of the upper boxes, some fifteen feet up from the floor, and she succeeded most admirably, making two turns in the descent before the floor was reached, smashing through the same with her head and shoulders. The audience were delighted with this impromptu performance, and became somewhat excited for a while; but as the thing was a complete success, the audience quietly settled down to view the show of the evening."....Monumental Engine Company No. 6, of San Francisco, have presented to Confidence No. 6, of Virginia City, all of their coats, hats and belts, being full suits of uniform for fifty members.....An acid factory has been started in Carson City.....The Pioneer Stage Company is carrying more passengers over the mountains via Placerville than ever before at this early season.....Twelve or fifteen bridges which spanned Reese river were swept away during the freshets of last winter.....A fire at Galena a short time ago destroyed $30,000 worth of property.
